Description

In Natural Hand Dyeing DIY, the old is new again as hand dyeing fabric comes back into the spotlight with a more organic and natural approach. Maggie Pate teaches readers how to use all natural dyes from beans, berries and other kitchen staples to create custom patterns and vivid colours. As the owner and designer of a clothing label, Maggie knows what it takes to produce quality and textiles and shares that expertise with readers, showing just how simple it is to create a one-of-a-kind hand-dyed project with a variety of fabrics, including cotton, satin, silk, yarn, fleece and more. Natural Hand Dyeing DIY features step-by-step directions for the dyeing process, as well as simple projects that can be made and then dyed. Maggie's dye recipes offer an alternative to mainstream chemical fabric dyes and allow readers to create their own custom dye colours that can't be found in a store, making projects unique and personal. Featuring easy to follow directions and helpful tips and tricks for beginner hand-dyers, it has everything readers need to begin creating their own beautiful textiles. The book includes 12 projects and more than 25 custom colours.

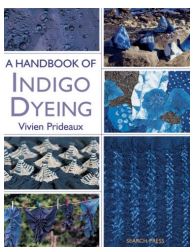

About The Author

Maggie Pate began her career in fashion modelling internationally then retired to work on her own fashion label, Nåde, an independent women's clothing label - featuring her hand-dyed fabrics - based in Chattanooga, Tennessee. Maggie teaches sold-out workshops on natural hand-dyeing and weaving. She splits her time between Tennessee and New York. Her website is www.nade-studio.com.
