About the Author

Robin Sealark graduated with a bachelor's degree in Fine Arts and an art education certification from Brigham Young University, USA, in 2013. She spent her undergraduate years specializing in oil painting and hyper-realistic portraiture, but shifted her focus to landscapes, seascapes, and skies over time. Growing up on Long Island, New York and exploring Utah, USA, inspired her to bring dramatic natural light and beauty to her paintings. Robin has established strong followings on Instagram and YouTube, where she frequently posts her work, tips, tutorials and advice for creatives. Through her personal work and teaching, she seeks to emphasize the idyllic beauty found in all subject matter through deepened observation and a discerning artist's eye. By sharing projects and educational resources she aims to create accessible paths to the basic techniques, materials, and tools that make creative exploration and fine art rendering available to anyone.
