Description

Pompoms are currently super-fashionable, whether adorning a headdress, swinging from a bag handle or dangling from a mobile or keyring. But why have a plain coloured pompom when you could have a tiny panda pompom or a watermelon slice pompom? With no fancy equipment needed – in fact, you can make do with rings cut from cardboard, four bulldog clips, a pencil and a pair of scissors, plus your yarn – these pompoms are inexpensive to make for yourself or for others. With striking, graphic photography and clear step-by-step photographs to accompany all the instructions – and with each pompom taking no more than an hour to make – with Pompomania you can easily add a little pomzazz to your world.

Key Selling Points

- Not just a popular trend, pompoms are a versatile craft for accessorising outfits as well as decorating the house or parties
- One of the simplest and cheapest crafts, each project can be made in under an hour
- Fully illustrated with step-by-step photographs of each fluffy creation

About The Author

Christine Leech has been an avid crafter since childhood and has over 15 years' experience designing and art directing a host of women's magazines, most recently working as creative director of the acclaimed Marie Claire Runway.
